The Musketeer

Our

We are young, but we feel we have lived more in our lifetime than our parents did at our age. Perhaps, each generation feels this way, but we seem somehow closer to the problems of Europe, Africa, Asia and maybe world destruction.

We can no longer think of being a citizen of only one country. We must think in terms of the world. And education must then take on a new meaning for us. It is our hope...No...It is our determination to play our part fully and wisely in our turn.

Foreword

Dedication

The most important task which faces the student of 1962 is the agenda the future will write. To meet successfully the problems of a world precariously divided by nationalistic strife, uncontrolled atomic energy and radical economic changes, the student will need warm human attitudes coupled with objective information. Such disconcernment is embodied in the ideals and practices of Walter J. Ormsby. He has always been alert and eager to discover the educational needs of students facing a future of great historic portent. During more than thirty years of significant educational service in guiding youth to face the duties of the present and the assignments of the future, he has rightly earned his place among the leaders.

Because of his high standards of scholarship, his keen sense of humor and those intangible qualities of personality which make him the man he is, we sincerely dedicate this volume of the Musketeer to:

Changing Education

The challenge to education in these middle years of the 20th century is tremendous. The health and well being of our democratic society is becoming more and more dependent upon the understanding by its citizens of the great and continuing social and economic change.

Because of these changes educational facilities at all levels must be expanded. Programs of instruction must be adjusted to new knowledge and to present day needs.

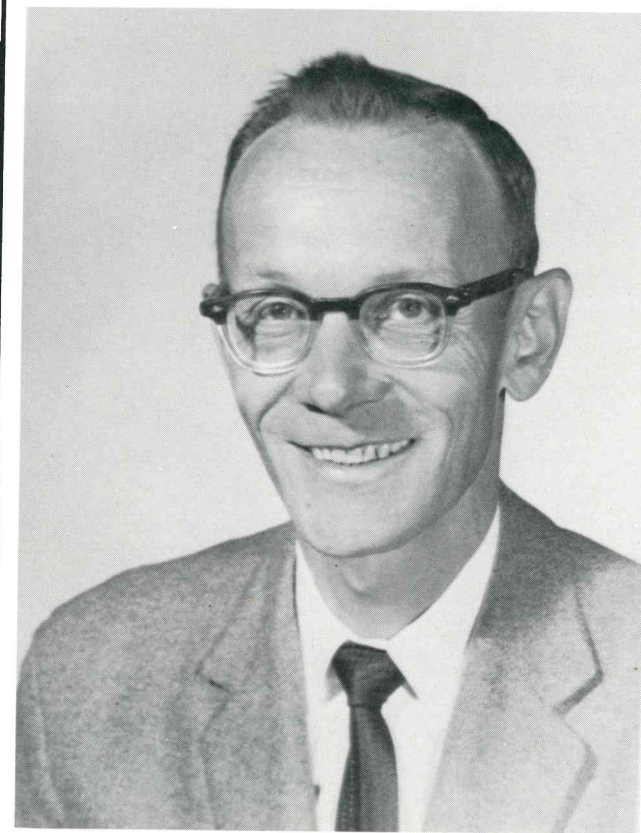

We here at Central Islip are preparing to meet this challenge so that the academically talented will have every opportunity to excel and achieve.

May I extend to all of the Junior High students my congratulations on a very fine yearbook for 1962.

F. W. Shertenlieb

Supervising Principal

Principal

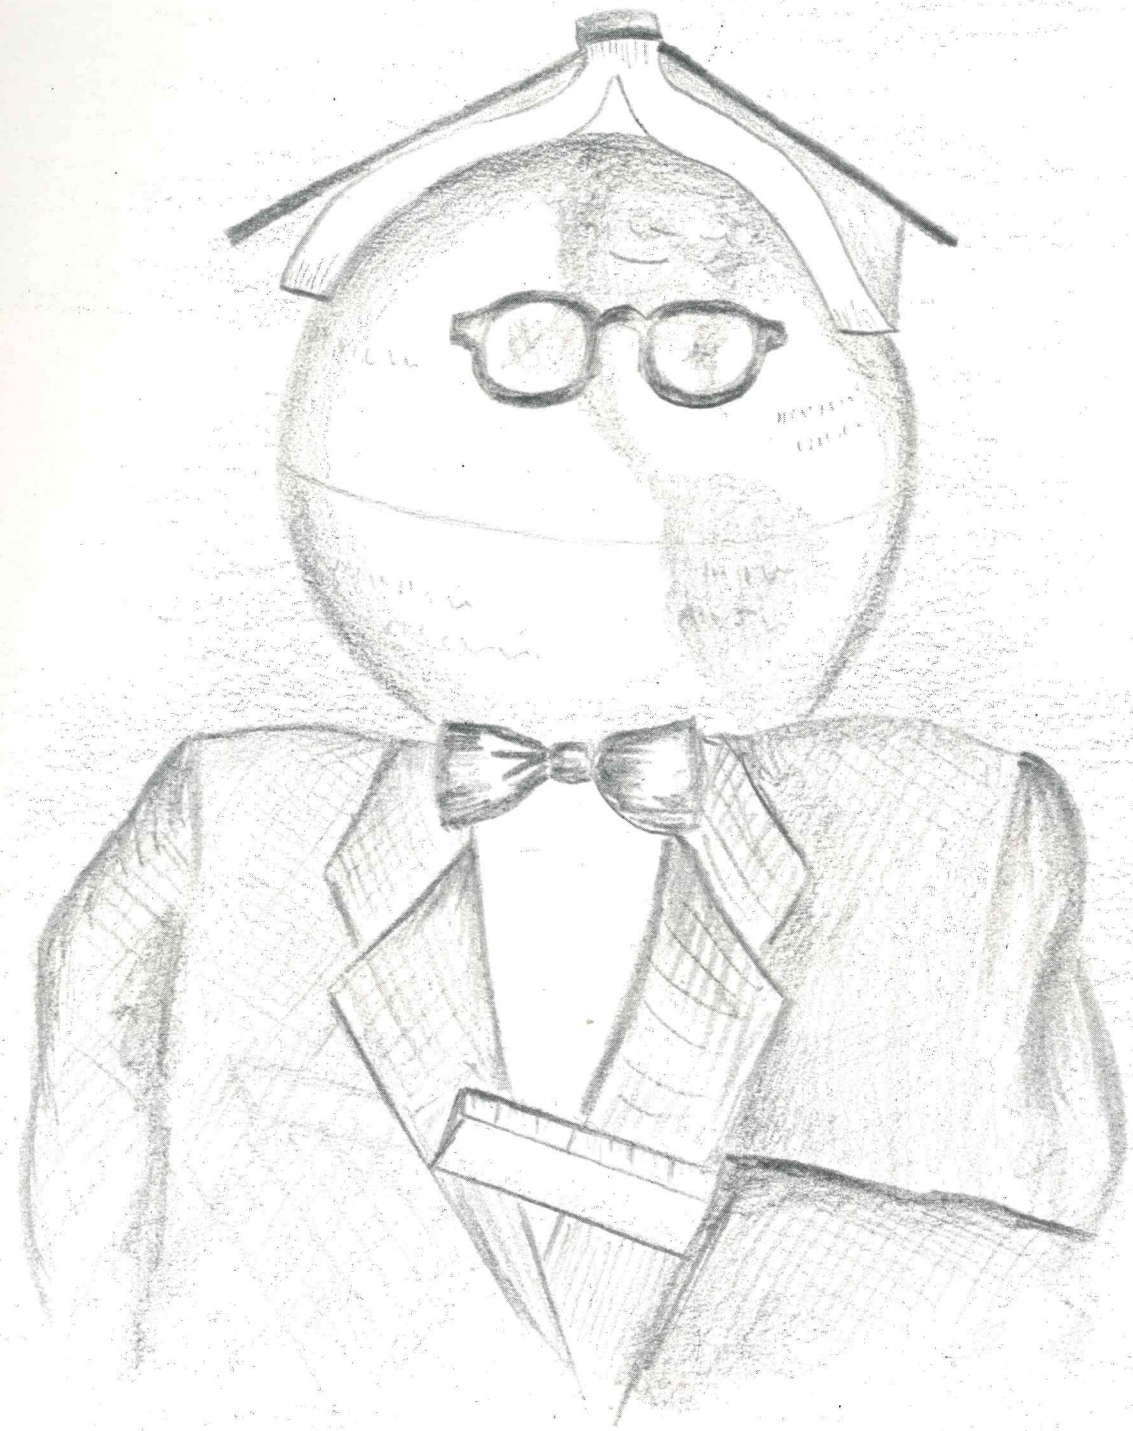

We are grateful to all of those who have given their efforts that we may have this record of events of this school year. I am sure that this yearbook will serve as an inspiration to those who will have the same responsibility in the future years.

I would like to express my appreciation and that of the faculty to the students for their splendid and untiring efforts to make ours a great school. I will long remember this as one of our brightest years. Thanks to each of you for making this possible.

Junior High School Students at Central Islip are fully cognizant of the technological world about them and the education needed to live in it. In demonstrating this awareness of the modern world and the major role of science, over two-hundred and fifty youthful researchers entered a variety of studies and projects in the Semi-Annual Science Fair held at the school on January 11.
